At UNC, Morgan Fox and Tyler Pearce both studied exercise and sports science, but their academic lives never crossed. Fatefully during their third year, the pair met through mutual friends, became instantly inseparable and dated the next six years.

Tyler hid the perfect proposal behind plans to eat lunch on Franklin Street one January afternoon in 2016. After parking on Stadium Drive, Tyler told Morgan they were meeting friends at the Bell Tower. Despite Morgan's general feeling of suspicion when she didn't see anyone else around, she was caught by surprise when Tyler knelt down to propose. To top it off, their families were waiting on the other side to celebrate!

On November 12, 2016, Morgan and Tyler were married at Fearrington Village. Before the ceremony, the couple shared a moment alone during their "first look." For 30 minutes, Morgan and Tyler talked about their mornings and their excitement for the day ahead - all the while interrupting themselves to laugh and cry. The ceremony followed, joined by a slight chill in the air - intensifying the Carolina blue skies during the hour before sunset. After pictures, the bride and groom kicked off their reception in the sunroom drinking champagne with their family and wedding party, including their parents Cheryl and Mike Fox and Vicky and Brian Pearce and locals like Claire Poulin, Sarah Mixter and Brian Gribbon. The couple lives in Chapel Hill. CHM
